DEATH FOR CLARENCE BOOKER

Pleads Guilty to Axe Murder of Andy Smith and Jury Gives Cameron Black Electric Chair

Clarence Booker, 24 year old Cameron negro, must die in the electric chair at the walls for the murder of Andy Smith, merchant, on the night of Dec. 21, 1932. Penalty of death was assessed by a jury in District court at Austin on Tuesday afternoon. The jury deliberating only 25 minutes sent the black youth on the last mile of his brief criminal career.

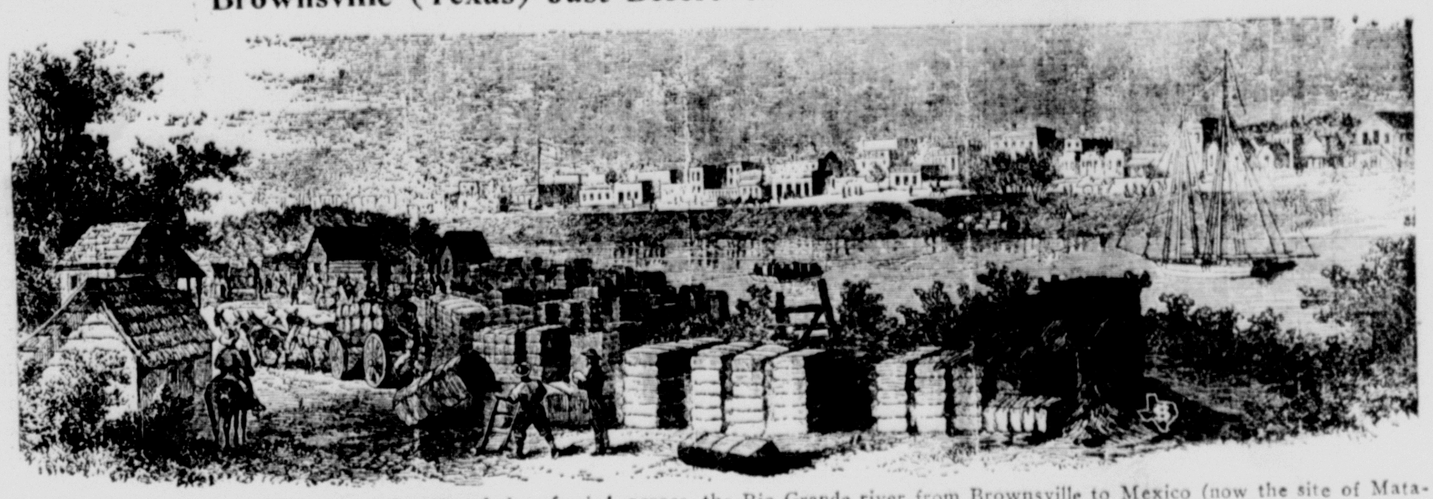

The case against Booker was transferred from Milam county to Travis county by Judge Graham Gillis because he feared an attempt might be made to mob the negro at Cameron. On its own motion after consultation with other officers of the court, the case was sent to Austin.

Booke r will be taken to the walls of Huntsville there to spend the remainder of his days before he walks to the chair to pay the penalty for his crime.

Andy Smith was slain in his grocery by Booker who wanted some money to buy a suit of clothes. Booker made two confessions, the first at Waco before Sheriff Leonard Blaylock and F. J. Bauerle, assistant district attorney. A second statement made a few corrections in the first. The first statement is carried in full in this issue. The subsequent confession will be printed next week.

Booker remained in Cameron until his arrest. Sheriff Blaylock, through the assistance of his deputies, Will Vaughn and Ray Robinson, cleared up what for weeks they feared would become an unsolved murder mystery. State Rangers were sent to Cameron by Gov. Sterling to assist.

Brownsville (Texas) Just Before the Last Battle of Civil War

This sketch shows 2,000 bales of cotton being ferried across the Rio Grande river from Brownsville to Mexico (now the site of Matamoros)just before the impending battle—the last of the Civil War. Brownsville was then under martial law, being occupied by an army under Major-General N. P. Banks. Historians disagree as to whether the embattling forces knew the Civil War had been over five weeks, as the contest was principally for possession of the cotton. A statue commemorating this battle has just been erected on the battlefield.

THE CONFESSION OF CLARENCE BOOKER

I, Clarence Booker, being under arrest and charged with murder, and being warned by F. J. Bauerle, assistant district attorney, that I do not have to make any statement at all, and that my statement may be used in evidence against me on trial for the offense concerning which this confession is herein made, do freely and without compulsion or persuasion make to the said F. J. Bauerle the following statement and confession:

"My name is Clarence Booker, they call me Bill. I live in Frogtown, in Cameron, Texas. I was born in Cameron, 24 years ago. I was 24 on March 6, 1932. My father John Booker, and mother Charity Booker, are both living. I have one brother John Booker, who lives in Cameron. He is 30 years old. One sister, Lucille Williams, lives in Cameron.

I married Hallie Roberts on Aug. 23, 1926 She had been married twice before. She has two children, Vernell Louise and Lecky Tucker; these two children are living with us.

I went to the ninth grade in the schools in Cameron. Picked cotton in the fall and been working for the City doing street work the last four or five weeks.

I knew Mr. Andy Smith about 4 years. He built a grocery store about a half mile from my house, and has been running it since then.

The afternoon of December 21st, 1932, I had been playing dominoes at

400 FARMERS HERE GET FEDERAL LOANS

More than four hundred farmers of Milam County have made application for crop production loans this year according to H. H. Onstot, field supervisor. Very few of these loans have been disapproved and checks have already been issued for most all of them. There will probably be more than twice as many loans in Milam county as were made last year. These loans are secured by first lien on the entire crop of the borrowers, and many of them will be paid off early in the season from the proceeds of truck crops.

The loan period closes on April 30 and no applications will be received after that date.

School Income Discussed by James

Referring to the financial situation, I can present the following, which is probably as correct information as can be had at the present time. Of course, you will understand that all the revenue to be collected in the state is a matter of estimates. But we have certain information, and a study of the tax collections in the past will permit us to make a fairly good guess. For the fiscal year of 1932 the total ad valorem tax collected for the school fund at twenty-five cents per hundred dollars amounted actually to $11,075,585.00. We are taking that as a place to start from. This amount of taxes was actually paid in during the twelve months, even with the depression. This was paid upon a valuation for school purposes of $3,962,841,346.00.

A careful check has been made by different authorities in the state departments, and the county tax assessors have been asked to report as nearly as they could how much this amount would be reduced because of the homestead exemption for state taxes. Several checks which have been compared show that we may reasonably expect that the total collections will be cut 30 per cent because of the exemptions of homesteads for state taxes, or $1,188,852,403.00, leaving a net assessed value for the coming year for school

'42nd Street' Opens At Milam Sunday

Every actor, including stars featured or bit players, as well as chorus of 150, who appears in the Warner Bros. production of "42nd Street" which opens at the Milam Theatre on Sunday, April 23, was selected for his or her role, in part, because he or she had had stage experience. In fact this was one of the essential points of this selection.

So closely is the picture associated with the atmosphere and the romance of stage life that it is deemed necessary for every individual who had any connection with the making of the picture to have had such experience including the director, his associates, the writers of both the script and songs and the technicans.

For the picture is a show within a show. It carries a well defined dramatic plot which involves the life behind the wings of a musical comedy company rehearsing for its opening pperformance. Consequently the entire revue is presented at the various stages of its progress of rehearsal and on its opening night.

In order to catch the true flaver of life behind the footlights, the real story of the players behind the scenes, with their particularized romances, their loves and their tragedies, it was considered necessary that each individual have a thorough experience and sympathetic understanding of such existence.

All Started on Stage

Warner Baxter, who heads the all-star cast, was well known on the stage, and had had thorough stock training before he thought of entering the picture work. Bebe Daniels who has the leading feminine role, has been on the stage or screen ever since she was a child of five.

George Brent, who has made such rapid strides in screen work in the

THE UNSHORN

God makes a mild and tempered air
For lambs subdued and shorn.
To these He gives His tenderest care
And pity mixed with scorn.

But how He loves the mountain sheep
Who brave the wind and storm
And use their sturdy horns to guard
The fleece that keeps them warm.

OFFICERS TO BE NAMED BY COMMERCIAL CLUB

Climaxing a year of unusual activity, the Cameron Commercial Club will hold its semi-annual meeting and election of officers next Monday night in Legion Hall.

President, vice presidents and treasurer and a board of 12 directors will be elected and refreshments will be served. The present officers are C. E. Akers, president, H. L. Green and L. Van Perkins vice presidents and August Gurecky treasurer. Followig are the names of directors: Giles L. Avriett, August Horstmann, J. W. Coleman, John C. Young, Ben F. Reichert, Geo. Banzhaf, Geo. Gott, H. P. Culpepper, J. B. White and Hilry Stedman.

Besides handling the Farmer's Crop Production Loans most successfully the club has secured the right of way for highway 77, after being turned down twice by the Commissioner's Court on account of lack of funds. This result was sesecured by getting the generous cooperation of the land owners and raising $850.00 among the public spirited citizens of Cameron, at a time when such feat appeared impossible, according to W. M. Cobb, secretary of the club.

Every member and contributor to the club is invited and urged to attend the meeting. An interesting program has been arranged and in accord with President Roosevelt's request for everybody to do something to bring back good times the Commercial Club at this meeting will start a movement to put Cameron on the map in a business like way.

H. H. Onstot, district field agent of the Crop Production Loans, compliments Milam County most highly by saying that this county has broken all records in Central Texas by clearing its nearly 400 farm loans almost unanimously, which other counties have not succeeded in doing. This shows conclusively that Milam county is in a better financial condition than neighboring counties Mr. Onstot thinks.

Says Her Husband Lost 16 Pounds In 4 Weeks

"I have never found a medicine that 'peps' you up liks Kruschen Salts and better still, leaves you 'pepped up.' I take it two or three times a week—not to reduce but merely to feel good and clean. My husband took it to reduce, he lost 16 pounds in 4 weeks." Mrs. E. A. Ferris, Washington, D. C. (December 29, 1932).

To lose fat and at the same time gain in physical attractiveness and feel spirited and youthful take one half a teaspoonful of Kruschen in a glass of hot water before breakfast every morning.

A jar that lasts 4 weeks cost but a trifle at any drugstore in the world but be sure and get Kruschen Salts the SAFE way to reduce wide hips, prominent front and double chin and again feel the joy of living money back if dissattisfied after the first jar.

Clears Up Sluggish, Dull Feeling

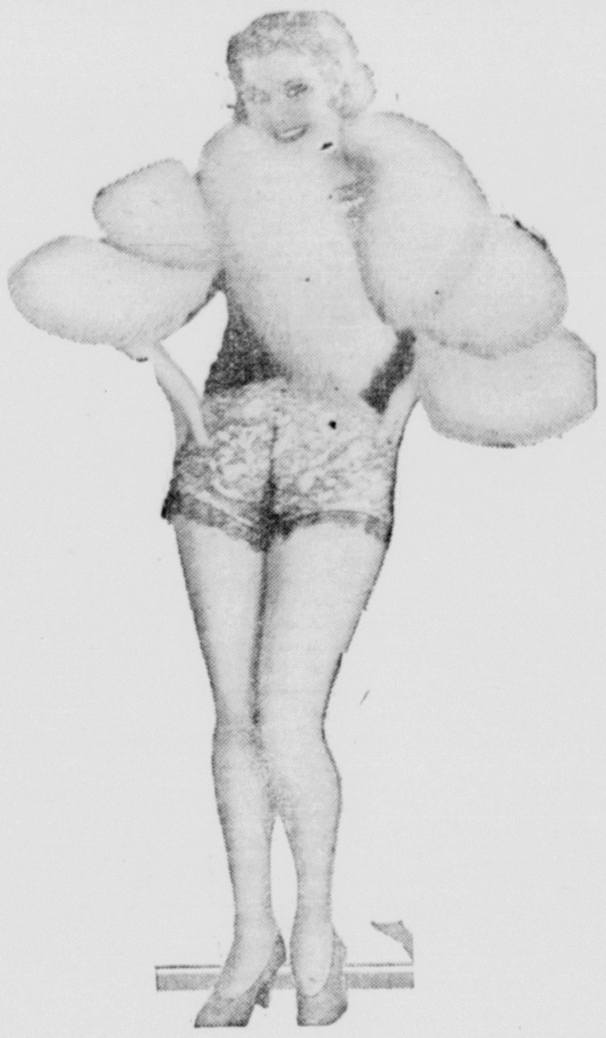

"I have used Thedford's Black-Draught for constipation for a long time, and find it gives relief for this trouble," writes Mrs. Frank Champion, of Wynne, Ark. "I think it is good for spells caused from gas on the stomach. If I get up in the morning feeling dull and sluggish, a dose of Black-Draught taken three times a day will cause the feeling to pass away, and in a day or two I feel like a new person. After many years of use we would not exchange Black-Draught for any medicine."

Tire Dropped by World Fliers Drifts 4400 Miles Across Pacific

An amazing ocean journey of 4400 miles made by a Firestone airplane tire dropped by Clyde Pangborn and Hugh Herndon in their epoch making round the world flight in 1931 has just come to light through the discovery of the tire afloat in the Pacific off Cape Flattery, state of Washington.

Stranger than fiction, the story of the tire's wanderings constitutes a romantic episode without parallel in maritime and aviation history. The world fliers cast the tire into the sea with the rest of the undercarriage of their plane shortly after taking off from Samushiro Beach in Japan October 3, 1931, their purpose being to lighten their burden and thus to save gasoline and gain speed. Two days later they made their famous "fishtail" landing at Wenatchee, Washington, sliding to a stop on the metal "belly" of the plane.

No one ever expected again to hear of the discarded landing gear. Weighted with heavy metal, it was supposed to have gone to a watery grave from which it could never return. But one of the tires at least had other plans. Through the buoyancy of the still fully inflated tube, it came to the surface and, carrying the wheel with it, began its remarkable voyage to American shores.

The course it followed was presumably the same as that taken by the fliers, but the time consumed was more than sixteen months as against two days they required for the trip. The tire was discovered bobbing up and down in the ocean by Captain Ivar Baggen of the schooner Presho less than two hundred miles from the spot where Pangborn and Herndon landed on their return to this country.

After Captain Baggen had brought the airplane tire ashore, the mystery of where it had come from was soon cleared. Through its serial number molded into the sidewall, its identification was established by the Firestone Tire and Rubber Company.

TO LIVE AT HOME
SOW SUDAN GRASS

At a cost of about $1 per acre Texas farmers in all parts of the State may expect to get from $5 to $7 worth of grazing on hay from sudan grass, points out E. A. Miller, agronomist in the Extension Service of Texas A. & M. College. Planting times range from March 1st in the extreme South Texas to May 1st in Northwest Texas, he says, but adds that good grazing may be had from the crop sown as late as July.

"Sudan grass has become the great summer grazing crop of Texas," declares Mr. Miller. "It contributes directly to the living at home program because it keeps milk cows in milk flow and sharply reduces feed cost on work stock, hogs, and beef animals, and helps keep chickens healthy. In sowing for grazing, 10 pounds of seed should be sown per acre in rows 30 inches wide. Grazing should not be started until plants are 15 to 18 inches high. By mowing the crop when it gets coarse and stemmy and keeping stock off a few days, new shoots will start and fresh grazing may be had. Alternate grazing is the best system if the pasture can be divided by fences."

To obtain adequate grazing one acre of sudan grass for each milk cow is recommended by Mr. Miller. It is also desirable to sow one acre for each head of stock, or for each beef cow. One acre of sudan will take care of 200 chickens or of two brood sows and litters, he adds.

bowel trouble

Constipation may very easily become chronic after forty. And any continued constipation at that time of life may bring attacks of piles and a host of other unpleasant disorders.

Watch your bowels at any age. Guard them with particular care after forty. Whenever they need any help, remember a doctor should know what is best for them.

"Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin" is a doctor's prescription for the bowels. Tested by 47 years' practice, it has been found thoroughly effective in relieving constipation and its ills for men, women and children of all ages. It has proven perfectly safe even for babies. Made from fresh laxative herbs, pure pepsin and other harmless ingredients, it cannot gripe; will not sicken you or weaken you; can be used without harm as often as your breath is bad, or when your tongue is coated; whenever a headachy, bilious, gassy condition warns of constipation.

Lady Took Cardui And Got Rid of Pain In Her Side

"Last summer, my health was bad, so I began taking Cardui," writes Mrs. H. E. Slaughter, of Norman, Okla. "My mother had given me Cardui in girlhood, so naturally I turned to it when I felt I needed it. I felt run-down and a general weakness. I had bad, dizzy headaches when everything would seem to dance before my eyes. My right side pained me so much, but since taking Cardui the pain has left me. I have taken several bottles of Cardui and have improved a great deal."

Cardui is sold at drug stores here.

"42nd STREET"

past year, is really a newcomer to Hollywood, most of his career having been before the footlights, having only recently appeared in "Love Honor and Betray," opposite Alice Brady.

Una Merkel's training was on the stage where she soared to success in such plays as "Coquette," "Two By Two" and "The Poor Nut.' Ruby Keeler, who has the ingenue role, makes her first venture on the screen in "42nd Street,' having been one of the Zigfield girls, and long known for her musical comedy work. She was appearing in "Show Girl" shortly before she was engaged to work in the present picture.

Guy Kibbee, Ned Sparks and Allen Jenkins all appeared before the footlights before they took up their screen careers, while Ginger Rogers was noted as a musical comedy star and Dick Powell, while recently an orchestra leader and master of ceremonies, had also toured the country on the stage.

Henry B. Walthal points back to a thorough stage training. Edward J. Nugent, Clarence Nordstrom, Robert McWade and George E. Stone are all well known stage players who have taken up screen work.

Al Dubin and Harry Warren, who wrote the song hits for "42nd Street" have beeen connected with the stage for years, writing lyrics and music. As song writers they play the part which they are actually in real life in "42nd Street," as also does Harry Akst, the noted pianist and composer in the picture.

"New Deal" Hits Louisiana. Texans are Thirsty

Top Photo—Houston misses put their feet on the rail of a Lake Charles night club and pronounce 3.2 beer to their liking. These smiling maidens all drove over from Houston to be present when beer went on general sale in Lake Charles Thursday, and you can tell by their expressions that said beer tickles their palates just right.

Lower Photo—Here's a scene from right across the State line at Orange, Texas. A hurriedly improvised bar and saloon is taking care of the beer wants of Orange, and adjoining Texas cities. This bar is less than 100 feet from the State line, and if you think there wasn't a mad mob of people from Texas scrambling for beer at this address when it went on sale last Thursday at noon, then you've got another think coming.

Joe Hewitt's about a block and a half northwest of Mr. Andy Smith's store. About the middle of the afternoon Joe asked me to go to Mr. Smith's to get change for a dime. To get some pennies. I went to Mr. Andy Smith's store and asked him for some pennies for the dime, and he got ten pennies out of a jar by the tobacco. I could see in the glass jar. It had some pennies, nickels, dimes, quarters and halves in it. When I saw that money in the jar I thought there was more in it than there was and I made up my mind to come back that night and kill Mr. Smith with my hatchet and get the money. I did not have my hatchet with me then; it was in the side room where the wood was in Joe's shack. I just stayed in the store long enough to get change, then I went on back to Joe's and gave him all ten pennies. I watched them play dominoes until towards dark. Just as it got dark I went to the side room to get my hatchet and put it in the right hand pocket of my blue mackinaw. I had a pair of striped overalls and a kinda blue shirt on. I had on the cap here, it is light gray. I had on some brown slippers with rubber heels, size 8.

I left the shack and walked up to the corner where Mr. Andy Smith's store is and turned to the right and went to Fred Knight's Barber Shop about a block from Mr. Andy's. It was drizzling rain and dark. When I passed Mr. Andy's I looked over there and seen a light on in the store but I didn't see Mr. Andy. I did not see anybody else in the store. I still had the hatchet in my pocket. I went on down to the barber shop and stayed on the outside about three minutes—not longer than five. I was just figuring on how I was going to hit him and get the money. Then I walked on back to Mr. Andy's store, walked up on the porch and pushed the door open. It was closed but not locked. I raised the latch and pushed the door open and walked in. Mr. Smith was leaning over on the counter in the back of the store reading the paper. I had the hatchet in the right hand pocket of my mackinaw and my right hand in the pocket to hide the handle of the hatchet. That was the same hatchet that I saw here today. I walked to the candy counter on the left and told Mr. Smith that I wanted a nickel's worth of candy. I just pointed at it with my left hand and he put it in a paper sack for me. I got a nickel out of my overalls pocket and handed it to him and he handed me the sack of candy. He dropped the nickel over in the jar that I saw in the afternoon. It was back behind the candy counter over by the tobacco.

After he waited on me he walked back to the counter where he was reading the paper when I came in. I walked over and stood by the same counter and ate my candy. I kept my hand in my pocket all the time to cover up the handle of the hatchet. We talked about the weather and I ate all of my candy. Nobody came in the store while I was there. I kept waiting for a good chance to hit him with the hatchet. I ate all of my candy and stood around there for two or three minutes. Mr. Smith was reading the paper leaning over on the counter. He had his glasses on. I am right handed. I slowly eased the hatchet out of my pocket and hit Mr. Andy Smith in the back of his head. He dropped down on the counter. I was standing on his left when I hit him first. I don't know whether I hit him with the nail part or the blade of the hatchet. I hit him hard. Then I hit him with the blade of the hatchet on the right side of the head. He dropped on the counter when I hit him the second time, but after I hit him he fell on the floor with his face up. I leaned over the counter and hit him two more licks with the blade of the hatchet. He never did say a word. I kept hitting him to be sure he was dead. Then I went behind the candy counter and emptied the money out of the glass jar into my left hand and put it into my mackinaw pocket. I set the jar back down there. Before I got the money I set the hatchet down by the stove, near the front of the store. I didn't go back to look at Mr. Smith. I just figured he was dead. Then I left out of the north door, the same way I came in.

I went right straight home. I did not eat any supper cause I ate a late dinner in the evening. I just sat up and talked to my wife and Nat Rucker. He is her cousin. We stayed up until about 12 o'clock talking about first one thing and then another. Nat went home about twelve and me and my wife went to bed. She got up and went to work at the Milam Hotel before eight o'clock the next morning, and I got up and got the money out of my mackinaw pocket and counted it. There was three dollars and two cents. That's what I got from Mr. Andy Smith.

The night before, after I hit Mr. Andy and took the money, I turned out the electric light in the store. There was just one light.

I was at home when they found Mr. Andy.

I stayed around in Cameron, since then until I was arrested this morning.

I spent the money at the Safeway Store in Cameron.

When I went in to kill Mr. Andy I thought there was more money than I got.

The Road To Better Health

THE VEGETABLE KINGDOM

By DR. WILLIAM J. SCHOLES

All plant foods except fruits and grains and nuts, are included under the term "vegetables."

With the exception of the so called legumes (peas, beans, lentils) vegetables consist mostly of water. They are rich in mineral matter but poor in fat and protein, their chief constituent being starch and sugar.

One of the chief advantages of vegetables as a food, in addition to their nutritional value, is this:

A considerable part of the vegetable consists of un-absorbable matter which is never digested or assimilated and passes unchanged into the bowel. Here it adds bulk to the residue and acts as a vehicle for the elimination of toxic material. In this role it serves a very useful purpose, as one of the main reasons people are constipated is that there is nothing in the bowel on which its muscular coat can fasten itself and propel forward.

Very few persons can eat all vegetables with impunity. We all have our little idiosyncrasies in this connection as we do in most affairs of life. Some people suffer with a violent attack of gastritis if they eat a piece of onion as large as a pea, while others could eat a bushel basket of onions and suffer from nothing but lonesomeness. Some persons get a beautiful case of "hives" from a few strawberries while others can consume half the patch while they are picking, with no danger except to get caught doing it. And so on throughout the entire dietetic list—"whats one man's food is another man's poison."

Here are some good rules for cooking vegetables that, I believe, are appropos in this connection:

(1) Wash thoroughly.

(2) Pare, peel, or scrape according to kind.

(3) Let stand in cold water until ready to cook, to keep them crisp, to freshen when wilted, or to prevent from turning dark.

(4) Cook in enough fresh boiling salted water (one teaspoonful of salt to one quart water) to cover, and keep water boiling slowly, as tender vegetables are easily broken. To preserve color cook green vegetables uncovered.

Criticises Uniforms

Miss Mildred Harrigan has resigned as a teacher in the San Antonio schools because her position prevented her from speaking her thoughts. She wrote a letter to army officers protesting against the soldiers marching in the Fiesta parade in olive drab uniform, declaring the unsightly color made them look like "an animated dung heap." She suggested that the soldiers march in civilian clothing.

Mrs. Wallace Guthrie of Rockdale was taken ill Monday morning at her home, and owing to the seriousness of the case was taken to Scott & White's hospital in Temple for special treatment. They gave little hope for her recovery. Mrs. Guthrie before her marriage was Miss Nymphadore Ford, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Major Ford, and lived in Cameron where she has many friends.

purposes amounting to $2,773,988,-943.00. Taking this assessed value at the constitutional limit of thirty five cents per hundred dollars, which has always been collected, you will have a tax collection amounting to $9,708,-961.00. Taking away from that an estimated 25 per cent for delinquency and cost of collection would leave a net revenue amounting to $7,281,-720.00. We may safely add to that $1,000,000.00 for collection of delinquent taxes. The amount for the last three years has run over that in spite of the depression. This would leave an estimated total for state school fund from ad valorem taxes of $8,281,720.00, as compared with the year just passed of $11,075,-585.00 or a shrinkage of less than $2,025,000.00.

The gasoline tax net to the school fund for the past year was $7,194,-311,00. This is the lowest it has been for several years. But the gasoline tax has been more nearly steady than any other tax in the whole state. A law which has just been passed and signed by the Governor tightens up the collection of gasoline tax, and is expected to largely stop the bootlegging. As a result of this law, those who have studied it for several years, and are best informed, believe that the collections for the coming year even on the same amount of gasoline used will increase from $2,000,000.00 up. Some think it will amount to as much as $4,000,000.00. But the best informed men here in the House think it will bring in enough to practically offset the reduction caused by the homestead exemption on ad valorem taxes.

The sulphur tax is small and will pay less than it has for the two years, due to the fact that less is mined and sold. The cigarette tax paid in the school fund the past year was $1,685,400.00, being one half of the total collected. The house has before it a bill to give for two years all of this cigarette tax to the schools, which would increase the school fund over $1,500,000.00.

These three items are the main ones which make up the available school fund. Together with the interest on the permanent fund, and all of the gross receipts and miscellaneous taxes, they amounted in the past year to $26,171,274.00 or $15.58 per capita. These will remain substantially as they are—some up a little, some down. The total amount paid for the fiscal year of 1932 was $26,171,274.00 which figured on a school census of 1,560,000, for the State, makes a trifle over $16.00 actually paid to the schools during 12 months, but not during the school year.

Considering that the gasoline tax has held up very well, and picking up a little now, and considering also that we have a better enforcement law for this, it is quite possible that all the present taxes provided for, combined with the ad valorem taxes, will be nearly as much as they were during the past year. There can be no question that the present available revenues will amount to over $14.00, regardless of collections. The prospects of increasing that amount will depend upon new taxes. To raise $2.00 per capita additional would require $3,000,000.00. That would insure $16.00. A number of sources are possible. The graduated oil tax, known as the Daniel bill, should pay in from five to six million dollars, half of it going to the school fund. An income tax prpposed by Mrs. Hughes may yield a little more, and the provision is that for the first year three fourths of it should go to the schools. But there is also provision that there should be a reduction in the ad valorem tax to fifttteen cents to offset a part of the increased income tax. But the two together would increase the total. The law above referred to, giving all the cigarette tax to the schools would yield over $1,000,500,-000.00. Any other revenues coming in from bills yet to be passed, such as the tax on pool tables, these little marble tables you see in the stores ,beer tax, and anything else, would be that much to the good, whatever they would bring in.

In other words, there is every assurance that the State of Texas will pay from $14.00 up, depending on the taxes raised—probably over $16.00. In other words, the state will not fall down on its end of the school fund. The real problem with the schools is that local taxes cannot be collected, and those which are paid are nearly all needed to pay the interest and sinking funds on bonds, leaving little or nothing for maintaining the schools. For that reason the schools are asking the state to pay more than it has heretofore, although the state is sure to pay as much as it has in the past.

JESSE JAMES,
Representative of Milam, Lee and Burleson counties, 65th District.
